1 trial brief addressing issues germane to the conduct of the post-default Rule 55(b) prove-up 2 proceeding, which is to be in the context of the forthcoming jury trial.<sup>1</sup>

3 A. Introduction.

4 On January 25, 2010, this Court issued its written order (#1632) entering a default against 5 each of the Compass Defendants for their failure to file a responsive pleading to the Second 6 Amended Complaint. Subsequent motions by the Compass Defendants seeking to set aside the 7 defaults were denied, and this matter is proceeding to a Rule 55(b) prove-up proceeding as part 8 and parcel of the jury trial of Plaintiffs' other claims against Silar and Asset Resolution. The 9 Compass Defendants wish to take the opportunity to apprise the Court of case law bearing upon 10 the Rule 55(b) prove-up proceeding and related issues.

11 B. The Court should not treat as admitted alleged facts which are not "well-pleaded", 12 or conclusions of law.

13 A default, if not set aside, has the effect of admitting the well-pleaded allegations set 14 forth in the operative pleading. Benny v. Pipes, 799 F.2d 489, 495 (9th Cir. 1986). A defaulting 15 defendant, however, is not held to have admitted conclusions of law or facts that are not well-16 pleaded. DirecTV, Inc. v. Hoa Huynh, 503 F.3d 847, 854 (9th Cir. 2007). In DirecTV, the court 17 specifically held that where the plaintiff's complaint simply parroted statutory language in 18 support of its claims, such allegations are not well-pleaded facts; they are simply legal 19 conclusions, which the defaulting defendant is not held to have admitted through default. Id. In 20 other words, "a default is not treated as an absolute confession by the defendant of his liability 21 and of the plaintiff's right to recover." Nishimatsu Constr. Co. v. Houston Nat'l Bank, 515 F.2d 22 1200, 1206 (5th Cir. 1975).

26 <sup>1</sup> Defendants note that Compass Partners, LLC, is a Delaware LLC, and is a defendant in 27 this case. Compass Financial Partners, LLC, is a Nevada LLC and is not a defendant in this case.
 28 The original Complaint, Amended Complaint, Second Amended Complaint, and Third Amended Complaint are each directed at Compass Partners, LLC as the named defendant, and not Compass Financial Partners, LLC. Defendants point this out due to the fact that in prior papers filed in this case there appears to have been some confusion regarding this distinction.

1       C.     The issues of causation and damages remain in the hands of the jury.

2              It is well-settled that while a default may preclude argument regarding the well-pleaded 3       facts set forth in the plaintiff's pleading, the defaulting party may still contest the issue of 4       damages. "A party who defaults by failing to plead or defend does not admit the allegations in 5       the claim as to the amount of damages." 10 Moore's Federal Practice, § 55.32 [1][c] (Matthew 6       Bender 3d ed.) "The claimant must establish the amount of damage, and the defaulting party is 7       entitled to be heard on the matter." Id. The general rule of law is that upon default the factual 8       allegations of the complaint, except those relating to the amount of damages, will be taken as 9       true. Geddes v. United Fin. Group, 559 F.2d 557, 560 (9th Cir. 1977).

10          The rule that the claimant must prove damages may also extend to the element of 11       causation. 10 Moore's Federal Practice, § 55.32 [1][c] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.) The defaulting 12       party is liable only for those damages that arise from the acts and injuries that were pleaded. Id.
 13       Accordingly, the defaulting party may raise the issue of causation to the extent it limits the scope 14       of damages. Id.

15          In Trans World Airlines, Inc. v. Hughes, 449 F.2d 51 (2d Cir. 1971), aff'd, 449 F.2d 51, 16       rev'd on other grounds, 405 U.S. 915, the Second Circuit held that where the extent of damages 17       stemming from a defaulted defendant's conduct was questionable, the plaintiff had to prove 18       proximate causation.

19          Because, however, the damages were unliquidated and uncertain, F. R. Civ. P. 55(b), it 20       was necessary for TWA at the hearing to establish the extent of the injuries established 21       by the default. The outer bounds of the recovery allowable are of course measured by the 22       principle of proximate cause. The default judgment did not give TWA a blank check to recover from Toolco any losses it had ever suffered from whatever source. It could only recover those damages arising from the acts and injuries pleaded and in this sense it was TWA's burden to show "proximate cause."

24          Id. at 70 (emphasis supplied). Accordingly, the jury in this case should be instructed that it must 25       determine both whether the Compass Defendants' alleged conduct proximately caused the 26       Plaintiffs damage, and if so, in what amount.

1           D. Plaintiffs do not have a right to entry of a default judgment against the Compass
 2           Defendants if the Court determines that the default should be set aside, no damages
 3           were caused by Compass's conduct, or the admitted facts do not constitute a viable 4           legal claim.

5           A party is not entitled to a default judgment as a matter of right, even where the 6           defendant is technically in default. Ganther v. Ingle, 75 F.3d 207, 212 (5th Cir. 1996); Rashidi v.
 7           Albright, 818 F.Supp. 1354, 1356 (D. Nev. 1993) ("Because the court has discretion, a party 8           making a request may not be entitled to default judgment as a matter of right even when the 9           defendant is technically in default and that fact has been noticed under Rule 55(a)"). See also 10 10          Moore's Federal Practice, § 55.31 [1] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.) The court has the authority to 11          decide to render a default judgment, to refuse to render a default judgment, or even to set aside
 12          the entry of default and continue with the case on the merits. 10 Moore's Federal Practice, §
 13          55.31 [1] (Matthew Bender 3d ed.)

14           Along these same lines, a district court may properly refuse to enter a default judgment 15          where the factual allegations, even if true, could not impose liability on the defendants. See 16          Cripps v. Life Ins. Co. of N. Am., 980 F.2d 1261, 1267 (9th Cir. 1992) (claims that are legally 17          insufficient are not established by default). See also Lewis v. Lynn, 236 F.3d 766, 767 (5th Cir.
 18          2001). Accordingly, the entry of defaults against the Compass Defendants does not preclude 19          them from challenging whether the admitted facts constitute actionable conduct (breach of 20          contract, negligence, fraud, conversion, and so forth) when applied to the operative contracts and 21          law, or from challenging whether their conduct caused the Plaintiffs to suffer legally cognizable 22          damages.

23           E. The Court may not enter a default judgment against the Compass Defendants if 24           Silar is found not liable for the same joint conduct.

25           This issue has been discussed at length in prior submissions by the Compass Defendants.
 26           In this case there are multiple defendants who are alleged to be jointly liable for the same 27          conduct, and for the same damages. In such situations, the Court is not to enter a default 28          judgment until the matter has been adjudicated with regard to all defendants, or all defendants 29          have defaulted in order to avoid inconsistent liability determinations among joint tortfeasors. In

1      re First T.D. & Investment, Inc., 253 F.3d 520, 532 (9th Cir. 2001), citing Frow v. De La Vega, 2      82 U.S. 552 (1872). If Silar and Asset Resolution are found not to be liable for the same claims 3      for which the Compass Defendants have been defaulted, then a judgment must also be entered in 4      favor of the Compass Defendants as well. In re First T.D. & Investment, Inc., 253 F.3d at 532.

5      F.      The Court should keep in mind that the default was entered under the Second 6      Amended Complaint, that the LLC Plaintiffs have since been dismissed, and that 7      not all of the remaining Plaintiffs are suing each Compass Defendant under each claim.

8      The Compass Defendants have been defaulted under the Second Amended Complaint.
 9      (Dkt. #1632, Order dated 1/25/10.) The Second Amended Complaint set forth particular claims 10     for relief, by particular named Plaintiffs, against the Compass Defendants. Any Plaintiffs who 11     intervened after the filing of the Second Amended Complaint, or who were made part of this 12     case by operation of the Third Amended Complaint, lack standing to request that a default 13     judgment be entered in their favor against the Compass Defendants at the conclusion of trial.

14     Furthermore, the Court has dismissed the “LLC Plaintiffs” from this action, and they are 15     no longer before the Court. Thus, the Court cannot enter a default judgment in their favor at the 16     conclusion of trial.

17     As a result of the foregoing, the following claims by the following Plaintiffs remain to be 18     tried against the Compass Defendants. Each Plaintiff must, of course, demonstrate that he or she 19     suffered a particularized amount of damage as the proximate result of a particular Compass 20     Defendant’s acts or omissions:

Claim for Relief	Remaining Plaintiffs	Named Compass Defendants
Declaratory Relief	All remaining Plaintiffs	Compass USA / Compass Partners <sup>2</sup>
Breach of Contract	All remaining Plaintiffs	Compass USA / Compass Partners
Breach of Fiduciary Duty	All remaining Plaintiffs	Compass USA / Compass Partners / Blatt / Piskun

27      <sup>2</sup> The heading of this claim for relief refers to “Compass”. Paragraph 6 of the Second 28      Amended Complaint (#364) states that “Compass” refers to Compass USA SPE, LLC and Compass Partners, LLC.

20        G. Boris Piskun and David Blatt ought not be held individually liable for conduct
21        committed within the scope of their agency with Compass Partners and/or Compass 22        USA.

23        As explained above, Plaintiffs have alleged claims for (1) breach of fiduciary 24        duty, (2) constructive fraud, (3) fraudulent misrepresentation, and (4) civil conspiracy 25        against Boris Piskun and David Blatt. The Court should note that it has already rejected 26        the argument “that the LSAs create a fiduciary duty for the loan servicer; ....” (#1489, 27        Order dated 9/18/09, p. 3.) “Barring express agreement to assume fiduciary duties, the 28        Court holds that loan servicers performing general loan servicing functions are not to be held to a fiduciary standard.” (Id., p. 6.) Rather, “the LSAs create a duty to exercise

1 reasonable business judgment.” (Id., p. 3.) The evidence will show that Piskun and 2 Blatt, in their individual capacity, did not hold any loan payoff amounts for the benefit of 3 the direct lenders. Thus, the Court should not enter a default judgment against Piskun 4 and Blatt based upon breach of fiduciary duty.

5 Piskun and Blatt were managers of Compass Partners, LLC, a Delaware limited 6 liability company. With respect to their alleged liability for other tortious conduct 7 allegedly committed in the course of servicing the loans at issue, Delaware law provides:

8       18-303. Liability to 3rd parties

9           (a) Except as otherwise provided by this chapter, the debts, obligations and 10          liabilities of a limited liability company, whether arising in contract, tort or 11          otherwise, shall be solely the debts, obligations and liabilities of the limited 12          liability company, and no member or manager of a limited liability company shall 13          be obligated personally for any such debt, obligation or liability of the limited 14          liability company solely by reason of being a member or acting as a manager of 15          the limited liability company.

16           (b) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a) of this section, under a 17          limited liability company agreement or under another agreement, a member or 18          manager may agree to be obligated personally for any or all of the debts, 19          obligations and liabilities of the limited liability company.

20       6 Del. C. § 18-303.

21       Based on this statute and principles of common law, Plaintiffs bear the burden of 22          proving that Piskun and Blatt, in their individual capacity and not in their capacity as 23          agents of Compass Partners, LLC or Compass USA SPE, LLC, engaged in conduct 24          which proximately caused Plaintiffs to suffer damage. As the court explained in Crump
 25          v. Mack, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 86194, 4-5 (W.D. Va. Oct. 23, 2008):

26           [Plaintiff] has failed to allege any express or implied promise of anything that 27          was not for the benefit of SIESA. The claim of quasi-contract and unjust 28          enrichment pertains to SIESA and only includes the individual Defendants by 29          virtue of their roles as agents of the LLC.

30       As noted by Plaintiff, a member of a LLC may be individually liable where the 31          plaintiff pleads facts demonstrating that particular member's culpability in the 32          company's tortious conduct that extends beyond that his or her mere status as a 33          member of the company. See, e.g., McFarland v. Va. Ret. Servs. of Chesterfield, 34          LLC, 477 F. Supp. 2d 727, 740 (E.D. Va. 2007). In this Count, however, Plaintiff 35          does not allege tortious conduct and fails to allege any actions taken on behalf of 36          the individual Defendants that extend beyond their respective statuses as agents

1 of SIESA. For these reasons, Plaintiff fails to state a claim upon which relief can 2 be granted as to the individual Defendants.

3 Id at 5-6. Plaintiffs cannot meet this burden.

4 Lastly, with respect to Plaintiffs' conspiracy claim against Piskun and Blatt, the 5 factual allegations of the Second Amended Complaint --- even if accepted as "true" by 6 operation of the default --- fail to state a claim against Piskun and Blatt. Pursuant to the 7 agent's immunity doctrine, "agents and employees of a corporation cannot conspire with 8 their corporate principal or employer where they act in their official capacities on behalf 9 of the corporation and not as individuals for their individual advantage." Collins v. Union 10 Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 99 Nev. 284, 302, 622 P.2d 610 (1983) (affirming dismissal of 11 civil conspiracy claim against individual bank employees because the alleged conspiracy 12 took place between and among individuals who were all acting in their representative 13 capacity as employees of the bank).

14 The rule that an agent cannot conspire with his or her corporate employer when 15 acting in his or her representative capacity makes sense. This is because a corporation is 16 a legal fiction that cannot act at all except through its employees and agents. When a 17 corporate employee acts in the course of his or her employment, on behalf of the 18 corporation, there is no entity apart from the employee with whom the employee can 19 conspire...[t]o hold that a subordinate employee of a corporation can be liable for 20 conspiring with the corporate principal would destroy what has heretofore been the settled 21 rule that a corporation cannot conspire with itself." Black v. Bank of America N.T. & 22 S.A., 30 Cal.App.4th 1, 6 (Cal. App. 1994). Indeed, there is "no actionable claim of 23 conspiracy where the conspiratorial conduct alleged is essentially a single act by a single 24 corporation acting through its officers, directors, employees, and other agents...[t]he acts 25 of these representatives, if performed within their representative, agency, or employment 26 capacities on behalf of the corporation, are attributed to the corporation." Nelson v.
 27 Metric Realty, 2002 WL 31126649 at *20 (Tenn. App. Sept. 26, 2002), citing Forrester 28 v. Stockstill, 869 S.W.2d 328, 334-35 (Tenn. 1994). Simply put, "[e]mployees of a

1 corporation acting in the scope of their employment cannot conspire with one another or 2 with the corporation that employs them; each acts for the corporation an the corporation
 3 cannot conspire with itself. Day v. Gen. Elec. Credit Corp., 15 Conn. App. 677, 683 (Ct.
 4 App. 1988). Were the law otherwise, a plaintiff could use conspiracy law to drag all 5 employees of a corporation into a lawsuit involving corporate rather than individual 6 conduct.

7 Here, there is no allegation in the Amended Complaint that Mr. Piskun or Mr.
 8 Blatt ever acted in any capacity other than as agents of Compass. The interests of 9 Compass, Mr. Piskun, and Mr. Blatt are and have always been aligned. There can be no 10 conspiracy between Mr. Piskun and Mr. Blatt, or between and among Compass, Mr.
 11 Blatt, and Mr. Psikun. Put simply, all of Mr. Piskun's and Mr. Blatt's actions taken on 12 behalf of Compass are imputed to the corporate entity (Compass) and Compass cannot 13 conspire with itself. Accordingly, the civil conspiracy claim against Messrs. Blatt and 14 Piskun is improper and should be dismissed.

15 H. Plaintiffs bear the burden of proof regarding both proximate cause and damages, which includes proving that alleged negotiated payoff offers allegedly lost due to the Compass Defendants' failure to act were legitimate.

16 During the hearing of Silar, Asset Resolution, and the Trustee's Motion to Strike 17 Plaintiffs' Discounted Pay-Off Claims (#1892), in which the Compass Defendants joined, the 18 Court seemed to be of the opinion that each Plaintiff bears an initial burden of proving that they 19 asked the loan servicer to accept a discounted payoff offer from a particular borrower, but that 20 the loan servicer could then counter with evidence that the lender would more likely than not 21 have refused to compromise only a fraction of the amount due, rendering the direct lender's 22 instructions moot.

23 Respectfully, the burden of proof never shifts to Defendants with respect to any element 24 of Plaintiffs' claims. The term "burden of proof" is an umbrella phrase that describes two 25 separate burdens; the burden of production, which requires a party to establish a prima facie 26 case, and the burden of persuasion, which rests with one party throughout the case and 27 "determines which party must produce sufficient evidence to convince a judge that a fact has

1 been established.” Rivera v. Philip Morris, ___ Nev. ___, 209 P.3d 271, 274-275 (2009), citing 2 29 Am. Jur. 2d Evidence § 171 (2008).<sup>3</sup> Courts in Nevada have found that a plaintiff bears the 3 burden of proving “every essential fact necessary to establish their cause of action.” Jacobson v.
 4 Manfredi, 100 Nev. 226, 233, 679 P.2d 251, 256 (1984); Stickler v. Quilici, 98 Nev. 595, 597, 5 655 P.2d 527, 528 (1982). A plaintiff also bears the burden of proving he was damaged and the 6 extent of those damages. Bergstrom v. Estate of DeVoe, 109 Nev. 575, 578, 854 P.2d 860, 862
 7 (1993); see also Paullin v. Sutton, 102 Nev. 421, 423, 724 P.2d 749, 750 (1986) (vacating 8 compensatory damages award because Plaintiff had failed to carry her burden). The Nevada 9 Supreme Court has also stated that “[t]he doctrine of proximate cause, as a limit on liability, 10 applies to every tort action,” and that a plaintiff’s burden of proving causation in fact “should not 11 be minimized.” State v. Eaton, 101 Nev. 705, 714, 710 P.2d 1370, 1376 (1985), overruled on 12 other grounds by State ex rel. DOT v. Hill, 114 Nev. 810, 963 P.2d 480 (1998), overruled on 13 other grounds by Grotts v. Zahner, 115 Nev. 339, 989 P.2d 415 (1999); see also Rivera, 209 P.3d 14 at 277 (stating that a plaintiff bears the burden of proving causation in strict product liability 15 cases). Furthermore, an award of damages must be supported by substantial evidence. Quintero 16 v. McDonald, 116 Nev. 1181, 1183, 14 P.3d 522, 523 (2000).

17 Accordingly, each Plaintiff --- not Defendants --- must prove not only that they instructed 18 the loan servicer to accept a discounted payoff amount from a particular borrower (or would 19 have so instructed the loan servicer in situations where the proposed offer was allegedly not 20 conveyed to the direct lender), but also --- if less than 100 percent of the direct lenders consented 21 to the proposed discounted payoff --- that the borrower would have agreed to increase the 22

23       <sup>3</sup> “In a diversity case such as this, the burden of proof is regarded as a matter of substance 24 and, hence, it is governed by the laws and decisions of the states.” Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v. General Electric Co., 581 F. Supp. 889, 895 (E.D. Mo. 1984). “Given its importance to the 25 outcome of cases, we have long held the burden of proof to be a ‘substantive’ aspect of a claim.”
Raleigh v. Ill. Dep’t of Revenue, 530 U.S. 15, 20-21 (2000), citing Director, Office of Workers’
Compensation Programs v. Greenwich Collieries, 512 U.S. 267, 271, 129 L. Ed. 2d 221, 114 S.
 26 Ct. 2251 (1994); Dick v. New York Life Ins. Co., 359 U.S. 437, 446, 3 L. Ed. 2d 935, 79 S. Ct.
 27 921 (1959). The burden of proof is “an essential element of the claim itself.” Id.

1 amount of the offer to accommodate the "hold out" direct lenders. Otherwise, the transaction 2 would not have been consummated, and Plaintiffs cannot establish any damage as a result of the 3 loan servicer's conduct. Plaintiffs must also prove that the borrower actually had the funds 4 available to consummate the transaction.

5 I. The Compass Defendants wish to clarify that Compass Partners, LLC is believed to 6 have some assets in the form of direct lender interests.

7 During the recent hearing regarding Compass USA SPE, LLC and Compass Partners, 8 LLC's motion to set aside the defaults entered against them, the undersigned counsel may have 9 acquiesced to a comment by the Court to the effect that the Compass LLCs are defunct and have 10 no assets, and thereby implied that is indeed literally the case. The Compass Defendants and the 11 undersigned wish to clarify that Compass Partners, LLC, does hold several direct lender interests 12 in various of the loans at issue, with an estimated original purchase price of approximately 13 $950,000. The value today would, presumably, be substantially lower. These include the 14 interest in the Gramercy Court Condos loan which was recently the subject of discussion before 15 the Court. Upon information and belief, these interests were not foreclosed upon by the Silar 16 Defendants, and remain the property of Compass Partners, LLC.
